

All Saints Episcopal Church Pasadena

Breaking Through

Annual Report 2006

Dear Friends—

I love my job!

This year, as never before, I have had the opportunity to share with people All Saints' vision for living out God's inclusive love and call to justice. It is a thrilling story, which energizes me—and the people in this parish!

We have inherited a tradition of courageous and imaginative responses to many of the intractable problems of church and society from those who have gone before us—in race relations, the place of women in the church, AIDS, homelessness, children at risk, inclusive language, inclusion of gays and lesbians, immigration, opposing unjust wars, fighting genocide, and bridging interfaith divisions. A pioneering spirit is deeply embedded in our DNA.

In 2006 that pioneering spirit was alive and flourishing. We deepened our interfaith work with the visit of Boston Globe columnist/theologian James Carroll; helped couples strengthen their relationships with a 6-week course, "Couplehood as a Spiritual Path"; were energized by a visit by Desmond Tutu; celebrated our first bilingual Virgen de Guadalupe service; dramatically increased our Sunday School and Youth attendance; and grew two new weekly liturgies.

I am deeply grateful to all of you who have made God's vision live through the institution of All Saints Church. Your prayers, encouragements, and gifts have been received with deep, deep thanks. May the work reflected in these pages encourage and strengthen us together in our work to bring God's influence to earth in our daily lives.

Yours in Christ's love--

Ed Kaneen

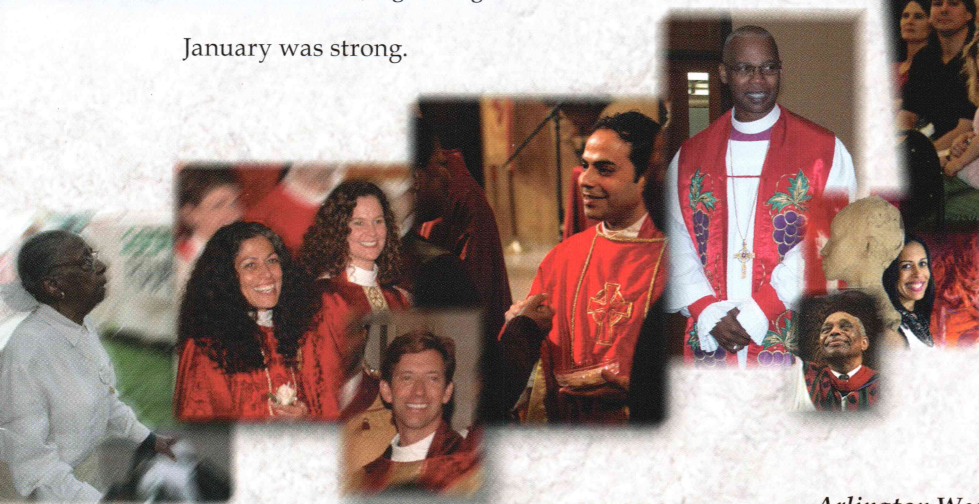

Breaking Through

2006 dawned uncharacteristically for Pasadena on a Rose Parade Day, with a heavy downpour. The rain inspired the rector, who braved the storm, to deliver a rousing sermon with the most compelling description of flowered-floats that you'll ever hear.

It was a year of weddings, incredible generosity, and a spectacular array of educational offerings and events that seemed never-ending. We were breaking through to a new level ... "leadership church" was a burgeoning buzzword.

January was strong.

Our favorite centenarian Lydia Wilkins not only turned 102 but was named an honorary Canon of the Cathedral Center by Bishop Jon Bruno. Abel Lopez was ordained as a priest along with 13 others, including fellow All Saintsians Liz Munoz, Sarah Nichols and Neil Tadken.

Martin Luther King Sunday brought two Murrays to the All Saints Church pulpit: the Reverend 'Chip' Murray from First AME in the morning, and the Right Reverend Julio Murray, the Bishop of Panama, at the 1:00 p.m. Bilingual Service. The day concluded with Peace & Justice Live's tribute to Martin Luther King, Jr. Subsequent Live offerings focused on California prisons, Nobel Peace Laureates and their challenge to build a better world for our children, global warming, torture and healing, and our traditional Ballot Initiative Forum.

Other January breakthroughs included the long-awaited launch of the 5 p.m. Saturday Celebration — an informal family-friendly Eucharist inaugurated with an enthusiastic congregation of 125 — and the Office for Creative Connections' City Conversations initiated Structural Racism and Community Building Roundtable Discussions. Convened to deal with the tough problems facing Pasadena, the roundtables brought together thirty-five top-level community leaders and activists who met nine times in 2006, and were called on to respond to several city crises that arose during the course of the year

February rocked.

Arlington West packed the All Saints' sanctuary for an evening focused on peacemaking and ending the war in Iraq, featuring Cindy Sheehan, Martin Sheen, Jackson Browne, and Ed Bacon, who welcomed the 800 in attendance. All Saints hosted Bishop Chet Talton and 250 ninth through twelfth graders from throughout the diocese for the annual Bishop's Ball. The College Students' retreat drew 25 people to the Serra Retreat Center in Malibu, and focused on different types of spirituality and their relevance to student life.

Kids' Club launched so kindergarten through fifth graders could meet weekly on Thursday afternoons to do community building and community service projects. Some 40 children created alphabet books for CORAL's literacy project, baked cookies for our Monday food distribution program, raised hundreds of dollars for Alex's Lemonade Stand in support of pediatric cancer research, and prepared and presented the liturgy for All Hallows' Eve. March rushed in like a lion with Pulitzer Prize winning journalist and author Chris Hedges headlining an inspiring Lent Event. Chris gave three powerful speeches on Friday night, Saturday morning, and Sunday—in a Rector's Forum on the threat of the Religious Right to America that had participants buzzing. The Peace & Justice Community Forum on Immigration drew 200.

Breaking Through

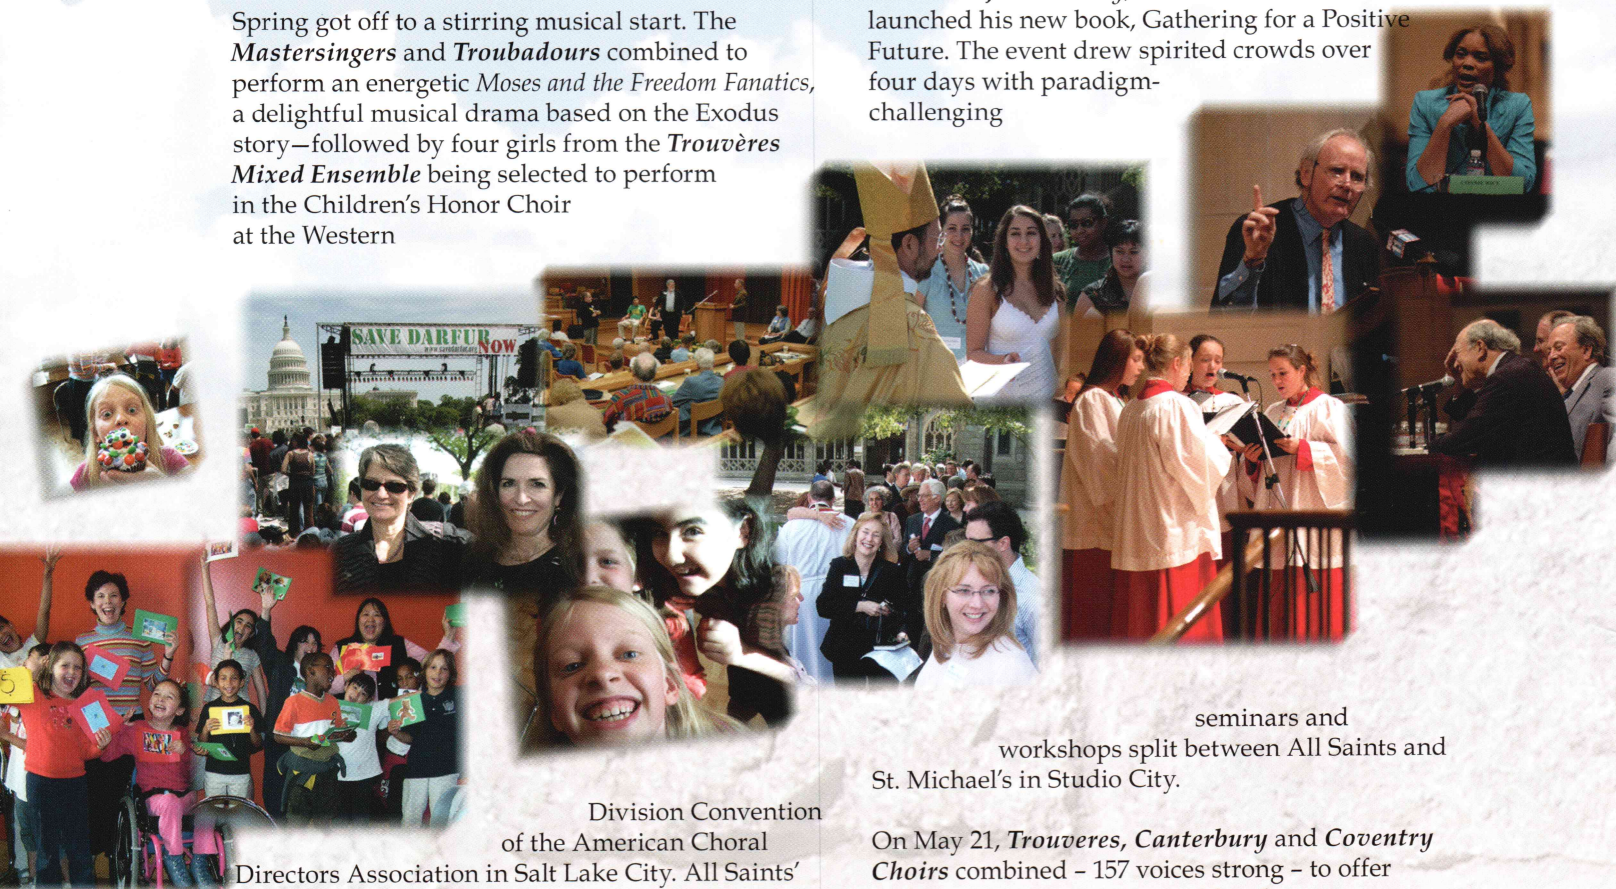

The rector held two packed and well-received listening sessions in the Forum about the vision for the new building, and took advantage of the opportunity to answer questions from the parish.

Spring got off to a stirring musical start. The Mastersingers and Troubadours combined to perform an energetic Moses and the Freedom Fanatics, a delightful musical drama based on the Exodus story—followed by four girls from the Trouvères Mixed Ensemble being selected to perform in the Children's Honor Choir at the Western the mall in Washington, D. C.

In an era when many churches struggle to get people into their pews, All Saints was blessed on a sunny May 13 to receive into its fold 60 new members in a Confirmation Ceremony presided over by Bishop Sergio Carranza.

In Mid-May Sustainable World offered On the Road to a Just Society, where David Korten launched his new book, Gathering for a Positive Future. The event drew spirited crowds over four days with paradigm-challenging Division Convention of the American Choral Directors Association in Salt Lake City. All Saints' talent goes out into the world.

Pastoral Care and Spiritual Growth instituted its Couplehood As A Spiritual Path class, taught by long-time parishioners and husband-and-wife Ph.D.s, Bruce Crapuchettes and Francine Beauvoir. Over its two-month span, the class offered an amazing program to sixty-five enthusiastic couples. Seven months of training began for ten members of a new Lay Guidance Ministry, which will assist parishioners experiencing stressful life events.

Easter and Holy Week drew nearly 5,000 worshipers to services and created huge overflow crowds on Easter morning.

Call to Community put the finishing touches on April with its Barbeque and Square Dance in Sweetland Hall. And on 4/30 a team from All Saints, led by Lorna Miller and Ilean Rogers, attended a national Save Darfur Rally on seminars and workshops split between All Saints and St. Michael's in Studio City.

On May 21, Trouveres, Canterbury and Coventry Choirs combined – 157 voices strong – to offer a thrilling concert of music old and new to an enthusiastic audience in the church.

All Saints' Joe Duggan was ordained to the transitional diaconate on Saturday, June 3, at St. John's, Los Angeles.

Sunday, June 4, was the day National Book Award-winning author and acclaimed Boston Globe columnist James Carroll came to All Saints. He preached at the morning services on Language Is the Language of God (joined by an impromptu visit from Archbishop Desmond Tutu bringing greetings at the 11:15 service), read from his new book House of War in the Forum at 12:45, then keynoted the Abrahamic Faiths Peacemaking Initiative's Event that evening to a full, excited sanctuary, presenting his original whitepaper: Iraq, Faith and Self-Criticism: A Christian Reflects. A stellar panel discussion followed, featuring Jews, Muslims, and Christians in pursuit of peace: civil rights attorney Connie Rice, Muslim leader Maher Hathout, Rabbi-in-Residence Leonard Beerman, George Regas, and Ed Bacon. This, on the same day that Women's Council gathered 100 who were inspired by speakers Zelda Kennedy, Francine Beauvoir, and violinist Becky Erskine under a very hot sun at Gail Bardin's home in San Marino.

The Parish Retreat kicked off the summer in style with retreat leaders Doug and Norvene Vest facilitating the annual discriminating legislation on the final day didn't trump.

Camp Darfur filled the lawn with tents recreating a refugee camp, inspiring awareness, education, and action around the genocide weekend event at Casa de la Maria in Santa Barbara.

On Sunday, June 11, Ed gave a remarkable, energetic sermon, An Exuberant Affirmation of Healthy Religion: A Children's Sermon With Adult Eavesdropping, with children gathered on the chancel steps. A children's story about the importance of loving our world-neighbors began memorably with dozens of "globe" beach balls thrown throughout the sanctuary! Surprised adults joined in enthusiastically! The Dodger's outfield bleachers have nothing on us!

The rector, Susan Russell, and numerous parishioners went to Columbus, Ohio for the Episcopal Church's General Convention, which convened on June 13. Highlights of the convention included the premiere of Claiming the Blessing's video, Voices of Witness with a large audience deeply touched by its message of God's all-inclusive love. And just following the 11:15 service on June 18, Ed called Keith Holeman's cell phone from Columbus to announce, "It's a Girl!" at the election of new Presiding Bishop Katharine Jefferts Schori, the first woman Primate in the history of the Anglican Communion. At the announcement, Zelda Kennedy shouted, "What?!! Oh my God!!" and in response, the quad lawn erupted in applause, gasps and laughter as the good news spread - good news that even the disheartening passage of in Darfur — and raised over $7,000 to buy solar cookers which allow refugees not to leave their internment camps in search of firewood, thereby avoiding attack by Sudanese militia. Over 500 people visited each of the tents in the camp and signed cards to the president from the Million Voices for Darfur campaign.

On June 27, members of the Troubadours and Trouvères hosted the Syracuse Children's Chorus for an Exchange Concert - both choirs performed separately, then combined to offer an exciting grand finale.

After eight months of total silence, which fostered some hope that the case might go away, the Internal Revenue Service quietly notified All Saints on July 24 that it would resume its investigation of the church. Included in the letter was a list of 13 requests for documents and information. Church leadership and counsel discussed a response.

On 8/6 and 8/15 PACEM commemorated the anniversaries of the dropping of atomic bombs on Nagasaki and Hiroshima with its banner on the lawn and a series of talks on the dangers of nuclear armaments.

A record 110 children participated in the wildly popular week-long Summer Kids Camp, "Adventures in Narnia." "Snow"-covered fir trees and children burst through the wardrobe drawers each day to explore C.S. Lewis' classic story The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe.

Breaking Through

September was a month to remember.

With Bienvenidos a su Casa! as its theme, Homecoming rang in the start of the new program year with Mexican food, song, and energetic festivities on the lawn. Vivien Sansour, a native of Bethlehem, joined the All Saints staff, the result of a long and extensive international search, as the new Director of Peace & Justice.

The Internal Revenue Service. Church leadership determined that complying to the IRS's July "requests" for information without challenge would be to forfeit our opportunity to take it to the courts — by waiving objections to the IRS processes in play. Instead, via counsel, we requested that the IRS state its demands in the form of an administrative summons — to preserve our option of having the matter adjudicated by the courts.

Two summonses arrived on September 15, one requesting delivery of specific documents and information, and one requesting Ed Bacon to testify before an IRS board regarding those documents and the church's practices and policies.

On Friday, Sept. 21, at a morning press conference in the church, senior warden Bob Long stood on the chancel steps, surrounded by All Saints staff and interfaith supporters from throughout the city, and told the gathered media that the "All Saints Church Vestry voted unanimously this morning to challenge the summonses of the IRS" — because it believed that the summonses intolerably infringed upon the church's Constitutional rights of freedom of speech and worship — rights crucial to the church's core mission and indispensable to other faith communities throughout the country—and violated the very IRS regulations that embody those principles. Muslim friend Shakeel Sayed then moved to the microphone and proclaimed, "I am a member of All Saints Church." Salam al-Marayati then did the same. As did Rabbis Neil Commess-Daniels and Steve Jacobs. The press conference was an emotional and inspirational show of interfaith solidarity. Solidarity Membership was born — and by year's end, the interfaith Solidarity Members numbered nearly 600 and had given over $84,000 in support of the church.

National media exposure

From "Candorville: online at <http://www.rudypark.com/candorville/comics.asp> was more pronounced; the local coverage deeper than before. There was another Los Angeles Times front page article above-the-fold, more articles in the New York Times and the Washington Post, stories in national magazines, and network TV slots. All Saints was also increasingly sought out for opinions on non-IRS issues, and for stories on All Saints' work in the community ranging from the church's activism to 'sin coats.' And again, support for All Saints was overwhelming. Even The Daily Show with John Stewart pursued an interview with Ed. Both Ed Bacon and George

In October, the Stewardship Committee coordinated celebrations of our community life at several wonderful events: a gathering of "Twenty & Thirty Somethings" at the home of Wilma Jakobsen; a "Country Fair" event for families and children of all ages; "Some Enchanted Evening" under the stars and twinkle lights on the Quad Lawn as the amazing soloists from Canterbury and Regas appeared in cartoonist Darrin Bell's nationally syndicated comic strip Candorville, breaking through from being simply an item in the daily news to becoming a part of the pop culture consciousness at large.

Media attention helped our attendance and strengthened our voice to the world. From Homecoming through October, attendance was up by between 400 and 500 people per Sunday, many of whom came to see what sort of place this was. Open plate offerings through the end of the year increased by 20%.

Celebration of Ministries Sunday was alive with many of our 130 ministries holding forth at their tables on the lawn, colorfully displaying their banners, bursting with pageantry and enthusiasm. And the Rev. Jesse Jackson came to church to stand in solidarity with us.

The last weekend of September saw the Hearts in Hands Giant Garage Sale raise $4,000 for Bad Weather Shelter, a joint project of the members of the Ecumenical Council of Pasadena Area Churches, to which All Saints belongs. Over two days, hundreds of parishioners donated items and dozens of volunteers made it an amazing community-building success.

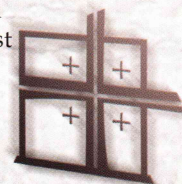

Coventry Choirs performed; and "Our All Saints Heritage," an afternoon enjoying a fascinating pictorial journey through the history of All Saints Church. This resulted in the 2006 Stewardship Campaign - Astounding God, Abounding Grace, Abundant Giving, "breaking through" with a first-time-ever annual pledge income total topping $4 million dollars.

On October 29, All Saints again hosted the 31st Annual Crop Walk Pasadena which raised over $40,000 for local non-profits offering service to the homeless and hungry, of which All Saints walkers raised over $6,000.

Peace & Justice's Truth to Power festival spanned two weeks in October and included films, discussions, participating in Ramadan iftars, and teach-ins on such social justice issues as anti-nuclear weapons, ending the Iraq war, supporting our troops, and cleaning up our neighborhoods.

On November 4, an All Saints contingent headed for Washington, D.C. Even a two hour wait in the freezing cold didn't dampen their enthusiasm about being eyewitnesses to the Investiture of the Right Reverend Katharine Jefferts Schori as 26th Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church and first woman Primate in the Anglican Communion.

On All Saints Day, our parish feast day, nearly 400 names of friends of the parish who had died since the previous All Saints Day were read on the necrology, as Coventry Choir and a chamber orchestra offered Morten Lauridsen's luminous Requiem Mass, Lux aeterna.

Breaking Through The Bilingual Service celebrated its First Anniversary on November 19, and that night, 500 attended the second installment in the Abrahamic Faiths Peace Initiative, The War, The Pulpit and the Right to Preach, to hear Ed, George Regas, Sharon Brouse, and Imam Jihad Turk share reflections on their experiences throughout the IRS situation.

All Saints' new website went live in November to be of service to both those in the front pew and people in the four corners of the allsaints-pas.org is an interesting place to be. Check it out, and let us know what you think.

At Diocesan Convention on December 1-2, Senior Warden Bob Long introduced a resolution distancing the Diocese of Los Angeles from "B033" – the discriminatory legislation adopted at General Convention in Columbus. The resolution passed overwhelmingly – after an energetic debate highlighted by an impassioned speech in support by the rector. The other All Saints convention highlight was the ordination of parishioner Sam Pillsbury to the sacred order of deacons in the Eucharist that concluded the convention.

A packed December began with AIDS Posada on the 2nd. The next day the Alternative Christmas Market brought in over $53,000 to benefit the needy through local non-profits and international organizations such as the Heifer Project, Habitat for Humanity, and Episcopal Relief and Development – and this year's new market members Get On The Bus and You Think Well. On both December 3 and 10, parishioners signed over 400 Christmas cards for soldiers in Iraq, which were delivered to the troops by Susan Russell's son, Jamie, who is a Blackhawk helicopter crew chief in Kirkuk.

Former Senator John Edwards filled the Forum for a Vroman's Bookstore event on 12/4 – it was packed, hot and buzzing with excitement.

On the 12th, All Saints celebrated the feast of Virgen de Guadalupe bilingually for the first time. On Saturday, December 16, the First Annual Tree Lighting brightened the quad lawn on a cold, rainy and blustery night, complete with hot cocoa and caroling – it actually came perilously close to being the "lighting of the branch" as wind knocked power out on the upper limbs, and custodians struggled to restore the connection.

On 12/18, a mountain of Sin Coats filled the church office like a force of nature, following Ed's sermon the day before in which he had mentioned a preacher of centuries ago who had declared that as long as the needy go coatless, any coat in your closet that is more than you need is a 'sin coat.' Who knew that that ancient pastor's words would cause an avalanche of coats for the homeless nearly 400 years later in Pasadena, California? One man brought in several brand new coats he'd gone out and bought for this, and when asked his name so we could keep a record, he replied with a smile, "God knows who I am," and left.

Also on the 18th, Diane Williams' Christmas Food Handout gave out 140 bags of food, toys and clothing to the homeless in Sweetland Hall, to top of a year in which she handed out a total of 2,750 bags of food to the homeless over a year of Mondays.

On 12/15-17, as an encore to last year's two sold-out performances, Canterbury and Coventry Choirs returned to Walt Disney Concert Hall to enchant THREE Christmas audiences along with the Los Angeles Philharmonic. Parishioner David Prather joined the choirs on stage as narrator of the event.

Attendance for Christmas Eve services was up by a remarkable 600 people over 2005, totaling 5000 for the day, and nearly 900 gifts were given from the record-setting columnist Robert Scheer, Darfur activists Gabriel Stauring and Paul Freedman, LA Times movie critic Kenneth Turan, USC dean Laurie Brand, Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist Leonard Pitts, Jr., theologian Susan Thistlethwaite, Archbishop Desmond Tutu, Dr. Helen Caldicott, the Rev. Jesse number of tags taken from Children, Youth and Families' Angel Tree. According to the Department of Children and Family Services it was the first year no foster child in the region went without a present.

Five Weddings and A Renewal of Vows: In another breakthrough of sorts, five staff members were married in 2006! Susan Russell and Louise Brooks; Abel Lopez and Mai Ling Garcia; Dave Erickson and Heather Pittenger; Rob Ham and Heather Lindsay; Anne Peterson and Stuart Coxhead; and Christine & Sheila Mackey-Mason celebrated 30 years with a Renewal of Vows ceremony.

There were awards: Ed Bacon was honored by the ACLU with its Religious Freedom Award; Jesse Jackson's Rainbow Coalition awarded him and George Regas its Acts of Courage Award; and the Islamic Shura Council of Southern California gave its 2006 Peace Award to All Saints Church and its Leadership "for its courageous and relentless efforts in seeking justice and peace for all people."

The speakers and topics offered at the church week after week were a Who's Who and What's What of contemporary political and spiritual thought: Then-LA Times editor Dean Baquet, Jackson, Nixon white house counsel John Dean, Arianna Huffington, Inconvenient Truth producer Laurie David, Muslim leader Maher Hathout, and Darfur activist Eric Reeves.

Transformational Journeys took groups to five destinations in 2006: nine people joined Lorna Miller on a trip to Rwanda, Wilma Jakobsen took 9 parishioners to South Africa, 13 traveled to Nogales, Mexico with Borderlinks, 15 journeyed to Malawi with Don and Mary Thomas, and five went to Agua Verde with Javier Benitez.

New Vision Partners restructured CORAL to concentrate its after school program at the fabulous CORAL facility and served 70 energetic elementary-age children in a daily after-school program operated by Neighborhood Urban Family Center. Thirty high school students attended the expanded year-round Youth Institute and another 20 youth enjoyed the new Junior High program.

Canterbury and Coventry choirs began recording the complete choral works of our composer-in-residence, Bill Cunliffe. Production will continue throughout 2007, culminating in a worldwide release of an amazing CD.

Small Groups Ministry was busier than ever. While one small group read and talked about When Jesus Came to Harvard another one watched

Jesus in the Movies. Book studies ranged from art to economics, from foster care in fiction to addiction recovery. Lectio Local looked at life in Southern

Breaking Through

California and Fiction Fun! read novels, both classic and contemporary. Authors ranged from Marcus Borg to Chris Hedges. The writing group produced a member who had a poem accepted for publication. Movies and Meaning presented extended series on immigration and childhood. And in the best All Saints' tradition, what began last year as Creative Conversations became the Verge, individuals coming together to discuss their creative lives and High also improved in all areas. The number of acolytes on Sunday mornings rocketed from 78 to 93. Pastoral Care and Spiritual Growth began 2006 with plans to strengthen its current ministries. The Labyrinth Ministry added a smaller seven-circuit labyrinth to increase the spiritual development and growth of our community.

Life transitions ministries continued to offer educational sessions in Coping with Diabetes, Breaking Free from Painful Memories, Choosing Forgiveness, Holiday foundings a community that both holds conversations and makes work. And numerous novelists, historians, composers and filmmakers came to All Saints' groups to show and discuss their work in small groups.

Peace & Justice's remarkable year also included service projects such as Get On the Bus, in partnership with Women's Council, which unites children with their incarcerated parents on Mother's Day and Father's Day; and the launching of a new ministry, Max Valor Prayer Project, which offers support and prayer for veterans and current members of the military and their families. Around the Table dinner conversations for members in their 20s and 30s grew as a community of energetic young adults wanting to have a deeper connection to the church and its ministries.

Children, Youth and Families enjoyed healthy growth and several significant accomplishments in 2006. The junior and senior high school programs saw some remarkable gains over 2005. Junior High membership on Sundays doubled from 10 to 20 and jumped from 18 to 37 on Wednesday nights. Senior

Blues, and Death and Dying. The Prayer Shawl Ministry distributed forty-two prayer shawls. Zelda Kennedy traveled 2286 miles to visit parishioners while 60 Lay ministers made over 300 parishioner visits and other volunteers sent more than 350 cards to acknowledge prayer requests. There were 25 weddings and 30 funerals throughout the year.

The number of meetings held at the church in 2006 totaled nearly 11,000.

2006 was the compelling saga of a growing church, bursting at the seams with spiritual life. It was about someone moved by another exhilarating sermon or miraculous choral piece, whispering to a neighbor in the pews, "I love this church." It was about blessings from unexpected quarters, and our voice breaking through to the world telling of God's all-inclusive love. It was about standing up for our convictions and finding lots of friends out there who were thirsty for that. It was a year of amazing enrichment and non-stop inspiration. A year of living in this very special place with very special people, trying to live in the house of love rather than the house of fear. Trying to bring heaven to earth, and striving to do our part in turning the human race into the human family.

A SPECIAL UPDATE FOR THE PARISH:

Where We Are With the IRS

FROM RECTOR ED BACON, AND SENIOR WARDEN BOB LONG

On September 15, the IRS served All Saints with two summonses — the first, seeking a wide range of documents concerning the October 2004 sermon of George Regas; and the second, the testimony of Ed Bacon about those documents and our policies against campaign intervention. In considering what our appropriate response to the summonses should be, the Vestry and Ed listened to the wise counsel of our parishioners and many of our friends and supporters from outside of our parish, consulted with our legal counsel and clergy staff, and prayerfully considered our two options — compliance now or challenging the summonses first. On September 21, the Vestry voted unanimously to challenge legally, and in a court of law, the right of the IRS to proceed with either of these two summonses.

We made this decision not because we have anything to hide: Indeed, we have reviewed the most relevant of the many documents that the IRS has summoned and believe that they fully support our position that we have always been mindful of the IRS regulations against campaign intervention, respect those regulations, take steps to ensure compliance and have always been in compliance. We believe that All Saints has not engaged in campaign intervention on behalf of any particular candidate or party — not in October 2004 nor at any other time.

Rather, we made this decision because of our belief that these summonses intolerably infringe upon our Constitutional rights and the IRS regulations that embody those principles — namely, the First Amendment rights of our church to speak and worship freely — rights we see as indispensable to our core mission, as well as to that of other faith communities throughout the country.

Only by challenging the summonses at this point in time could these fundamental issues be addressed by a court of law. Had we chosen simply to comply with the summonses without a challenge, we would be waiving our objections to the summonses and the IRS processes that led to their issuance. Accordingly, we authorized our attorneys to advise the IRS by letter that we would not comply with the summonses without a court ordering us to do so and by taking this course, intended to challenge the IRS summonses in a court of law. Our attorneys have now so advised the IRS and are preparing us for that court proceeding.

It is now up to the IRS to decide whether to seek enforcement of these two summonses. Should it decide to proceed, the IRS will take the matter to the Department of Justice for its review and assistance as the attorneys for the government. In the meantime, our attorneys will be requesting a conference with the Department of Justice to explain our position and what we see as the risks to the government of proceeding in the face of our objections. If the Department decides nevertheless to move forward on behalf of the IRS, it will file a civil action known as a summons enforcement proceeding. We believe that any such case would be filed in federal court here in Los Angeles, probably before the end of the year. Once we are served with that action, our attorneys will have the opportunity to file our opposition to the petition, raising the constitutional and other objections we have to the summonses. A federal judge will then decide whether to enforce them. We would expect any such court decision to be made within 90 days or so after the action is filed.

If a judge declines enforcement of the summonses, that decision will in all likelihood end the IRS investigation. If the judge grants enforcement, we will be prepared to make a timely and complete production of all the documents that have been summoned and produce Ed to testify. Based on the documents we produce and the testimony we provide, the IRS would then come to some determination of whether, in its view, we engaged in improper campaign intervention on behalf of a particular candidate or party and what the consequences of that would be, either an excise tax based on the cost of the conduct in question or a revocation of our tax exempt status for some period of time. Should the IRS make such an adverse determination against us, we would then be entitled to challenge that determination by initiating a separate legal action of our own, either in the United States Tax Court or the United States District Court, and showing that we have been in compliance with the IRS regulations.

We remain hopeful that the IRS investigation will be concluded favorably long before any adverse determination is made, either on the summonses or the merits. We have communicated publicly and to the IRS that we fully support the principles of its regulations against campaign intervention and continue to be diligent about our compliance with them. In contrast, there appear to be many 501(c)(3) organizations across the country that seemingly have no regard for those regulations and regularly flout them, but are not under investigation. Nevertheless, as long as the IRS moves forward against All Saints, we intend to diligently defend our rights and the merits of our position at every opportunity. It is our moral responsibility to do so.

Taxman caught in the middle

In election year, IRS is ensnared in politics of the pulpit

BY GILLIAN FLACCIO
OF ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — The IRS is increasingly being asked to referee disputes over whether churches are properly exempting themselves from paying taxes on the pulpit. And some fear the trend could endanger the taxman's neutrality.

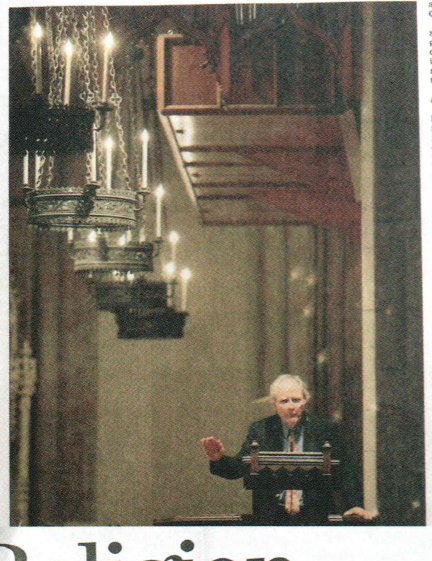

Months before November's midterm elections, the Internal Revenue Service warned that it would be scrutinizing churches to make sure they do not violate their tax-exempt status. Groups both liberal and conservative have responded by lodging numerous complaints against churches with the IRS.

Any citizen can form a group and sue on all these churches and report the results," said Ed McCaffrey, dean of the University of Southern California School of Law and a tax law expert. "This entanglement of church and state via the tax laws is deeply out of control."

Churches can be important political forums during election season. Under federal tax law, churches can discuss politics, but if they endorse candidates or parties, they can be stripped of their tax-exempt status.

The IRS saw a spike in complaints of partisan politics in 2004, the last national election.

More recently, a group of pastors in Ohio filed a complaint with the IRS against two megachurch pastors they antirwar marches in Southern California.

But observers say the group's status has diminished. Even Regas acknowledges that it lacks deep involvement from the Jewish and Muslim communities, making the coalition launch this week necessary.

"This is just another effort on a new level," Regas said. Coalition leaders, who acknowledged that the antiwar efforts have lacked urgency, momentum, noted that the movement is finally taking off. The fight against the Vietnam War took years to gain national prominence. They believe a movement is finally taking off.

Still, All Saints has slowed its political pace. Coalition leaders, who acknowledged that the antiwar efforts have lacked urgency, momentum, noted that the movement is finally taking off. Donations of jackets swamp local church

By JANETTE WILLIAMS
STAFF WRITER

PASADENA — It's not up there with lust, wrath and that seasonal favorite, gluttony. But if you have more than one coat in your closet when others have none, it's your official "sin coat."

Judging by the quantity of faux fur and tweed piled up in the rector's office at All Saints Episcopal Church on Tuesday, there was enough closet sin going on in Pasadena to clothe the multitudes.

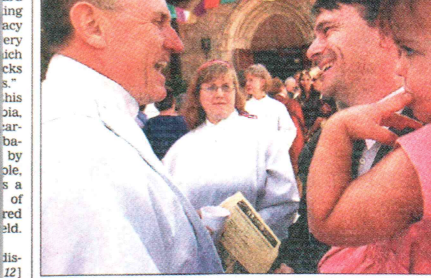

Sunday's sermon by the Rev. Ed Bacon contained a simple message from John the Baptist: "If you have two coats, share with the person who has no coat."

To drive the message home, Bacon also quoted a fourth-century bishop preaching on an ear-
